Eleventh-Hour Change Is Made in German Scheme Wired to U. S.

Cabinet Revisions
Thought to Have Made
Proposal on Reparations
More Liberal.

WASHINGTON EXPECTS
NOTE EARLY MONDAY

Communication Will Be Given Immediate Attention
by Harding and Hughes, Dispatches Say.

Berlin, April 24.—(By the Associated Press.)—The German counter proposals on reparations were presented to E. L. Loring Drexel, the American charge commission, this evening and were immediately transmitted to the United States.

The cabinet discussed the proposals with the reichstag leaders until midnight and then resumed the session at 11 o'clock this morning.

Germany's reparations note to the United States was held up Sunday because, apparently, the cabinet members believed they were not offering enough to constitute a basis of negotiations in the view of President Harding.

Just as the note setting forth Germany's estimate of what she can pay, was reported ready to dispatch to Washington, there was a hitch and a new conference of cabinet leaders in Wilhelmstrasse was called.

Trouble With Document.

The trouble with the document was, according to the report, most generally credited, that it did not go far enough. The cabinet members were suddenly overtaken by the realization that the terms they were proposing would not impress President Harding as being generous enough to form the basis for discussion—hint of which was carried in Harding's communication to the German government.

Independent socialists and communists who attempted to start debate in the reichstag yesterday afternoon relative to the German cabinet's appeal to Washington were decisively defeated. The reichstag voted to postpone discussion until the latest German proposals were in the hands of President Harding.

EXPECTED TO REACH
CAPITAL TODAY.

Washington, April 24.—Germany's latest reparations proposals are expected to reach Washington early tomorrow and to be given immediate consideration by President Harding and Secretary Hughes.

It is understood that if the proposals were notified in substance in the communications said to have been exchanged between Berlin and the allied capitals today there will, perhaps, be no action for the United States to take inasmuch as President Harding already has refused to act as mediator in the controversy.

Should the proposals be of such a nature, however, as to warrant action by the United States, it is understood it will be taken only after consultation between Secretary Hughes and the allied diplomatic representatives here. In his last communication to Berlin Mr. Hughes made it perfectly plain that he would undertake to lay Germany's proposals before the allied governments only "in a manner acceptable to them."

Without Information.

The state department tonight was without official information as to the character of the communication which the Berlin foreign office was reported in press dispatches as having handed today to Loring Drexel, American commissioner at the German capital. Meantime all comment with regard to the whole subject of reparations was withheld.

The German answer to Mr. Hughes' memorandum of last week had been expected during the afternoon and some officers of the state department remained on duty to receive it. No plans had been made, however, to transmit it to Secretary Hughes. It was assumed that the memorandum was put on the cables at Berlin tonight and that it would reach the state department the first thing tomorrow.

It will be laid before the secretary of state immediately after it is decoded.

COUNTER PROPOSAL
LENGTHY ARTICLE.

London, April 24.—The German counter proposals, says a dispatch to the Central News from Berlin, are very long. The first part is in the nature of a protest, but in finality they are appreciably nearer a fuller realization of the allies' standpoint. The German cabinet today unanimously accepted them, the party leaders learned the text late

Nine Times Those Recorded

BY RALPH H. TURNER,
United News Staff Correspondent.

Washington, April 24.—With the state department ready to receive Germany's new proposals on reparations, and expecting them hourly, economic experts in the American government foresee a situation which will demand full investigation into Germany's ability to pay the allies.

Receipt of the new German program is expected to be followed by a series of informal discussions between America and the allies, during which they will seek to conclude definitely the sum Germany can pay.

Secretary Hughes promised he would consider forwarding the German terms to the allied governments in a manner acceptable to them. In view of this qualification, and the fact that America desires a reopening of negotiations on a new basis, state department officials are preparing for the necessity of harmonizing American economic views with those of the allies.

In this connection considerable attention is being paid to figures prepared by the department of commerce, which show the rapid increase in American purchases from Germany and reflect the quick recovery of German industry.

American imports from Germany in 1920 were nearly nine times as great as the imports of 1919.

Figures insignificant.

Goods which the United States bought from Germany in 1920, according to department of commerce reports, were valued at $88,325,230, as compared with $10,698,141 in 1919. Although the 1920 trade was not quite half the value of pre-war commerce, it is considered significant in view of labor troubles, fuel shortages, export restrictions and other factors which have hampered Germany in her industrial recovery.

The figures are believed to contain a two-fold significance, for they not only indicate the rapidity of German rehabilitation, but they show that American competition in the domestic market and in foreign fields where the United States and Germany are competitors.

Potash fertilizer material, valued at $21,042,825, forms the largest group in American imports from Germany in 1920. Ranking second are chemicals, valued at $6,797,842, of which $2,110,925 represented coal tar dyestuffs. In dyestuffs it is again already that American manufacturers are failing to hold the market which they hoped to build off during the war.

Germany Undermining.

From Europe, South America and Asia come reports of German manufacturers underselling the salesmen of America, Britain, France and Japan.

All these phases of Germany's industrial comeback are expected to be taken up in settling the reparations figure, including the achievements which are credited to the new German trusts and syndicates.

American economic experts are expected to take a somewhat paradoxical view, holding that Germany must be allowed to develop her export trade, thus insuring her ability to pay reparations, despite the competition which she may offer to American and allied foreign trade.

In this connection, the question of imposing a tax on German exports is foreseen as one of the chief points of debate between America and the allies.

With the receipt of the new German reparations proposal, the question "How much can Germany pay?" will come to a head and, according to the view here, will center around an investigation into Germany's economic condition.

The export figures compiled by the commerce department also show that America has been buying beet sugar, toys, cotton goods, furs and aluminum from Germany in increasing amounts.

An inquiry into what these imports signify will form a part of the preliminary conversations between America and the allies and will reach further development when this government names an official representative on the reparations commission, it is stated here.

Belgians' Queen Casts Her First Vote; Waits Turn

Takes Place in the Line of Working People in Polling Place.

Paris, April 24.—Queen Elizabeth, of the Belgians, newspaper correspondents in Brussels declare, proved her democracy when she cast her first vote in the communal elections, taking her turn with poorly-dressed citizens of Brussels and refusing to accept "a better place in the line" which was offered to her.

The queen, L'Intransigent says, was plainly dressed, wearing a black hat, a plain dress and a mantle of silver fox fur. She voted in a school in the precinct of the palace, and was sixth from the ballot box when she was discovered.

Barred market women sought to withdraw and offer her their better positions, but she declined, telling them: "I will wait my turn like everybody else. I am here as a citizeness, doing my duty."

Then, after dropping her ballot in the box, she made a smiling exit, stopping on the way to kiss a little Belgian boy and his sister, in the manner of a true American politician.

This is the first Belgian election in which women have voted on an absolute equality of terms with the men, and the first in which there have been no property qualifications.

Innsbruck, April 23.—(By the Associated Press.)—Returns up to midnight in the plebiscite held in Tyrol today totaled $6,600 and 528 against union with Germany. Complete returns for Innsbruck show a vote of 44,000 for and 416 against union.

London, April 24.—The Tyrolean plebiscite has gone in favor of adhesion to Germany, 125,000 to 110,000, according to the Exchange Telegraph company's Vienna bureau. The figures are not official, but estimated.

Harding Brushes Up
On History of War
Between the States

Leesburg, Va., April 24.—President Harding Sunday in Leesburg and freshened up a bit on civil war history, race horses and other matters of interest in and about the Leesburg McLean estate here.

The president drove over from Washington with Mrs. Harding, Brigadier General Sawyer and Mr. McLean and had luncheon at the McLean home here. The house, the scene of General Lee's surrender, and the 1,200 acres embraced in the estate, are rich in civil war history. Mr. McLean also has some fine racing horses which were introduced with proper ceremony to the president.

FEDERAL AGENTS TO PROBE SECOND "MURDER FARM"

Evidence That Three Negroes
Have Been Killed
in South Georgia Furnished District Attorney.

Declaring that he had in his possession evidence indicating that at least three negroes have been killed on a plantation in a south Georgia county operated in the same manner as the famous John S. Williams "murder farm," Vincent Hughes, head of the Atlanta federal bureau of investigation, announced Sunday night that his agents will leave Monday to conduct a thorough probe of the charges.

Governor Hugh M. Dorsey stated that, while none of the facts in the new case had been referred to him up to Sunday night, he would co-operate with the federal officials in bringing about an immediate probe of the alleged second "murder farm," and would confer with the county authorities as soon as possible. Owing to the absence of any official report to the state, the governor said, he could take no action until fully advised.

Assure Co-operation.

In discussing the case, Mr. Hughes asserted that several reliable witnesses had assured the department of justice of their full co-operation in conducting the investigation this week. The case was referred to him late Saturday night by District Attorney Hooper Alexander, who first received information concerning the alleged murders, and Mr. Hughes said that he had not completed his examination of the material.

"We do not feel at liberty in revealing the name of the county in which the farm is located," he stated, "as our officials will leave Monday to make their investigation. I understand that the witnesses giving the district attorney accounts of the alleged murders are reliable and can be depended upon for aid in our probe."

"From the information I have in my possession, the murder of three negroes is indicated, and it is possible that more may have been killed. You realize, of course, that our evidence has not yet been corroborated by the discovery of the bodies, and our investigations this week will be toward this end."

"The evidence we have is sensational and the case may develop into one almost as bad as the Williams case," he concluded.

Not in Jurisdiction.

District Attorney Alexander stated that the county in which the

BY FUZZY WOODRUFF.

I've worked on a lot of newspapers and I ought to know newspaper offices from the editorial sanctum to the subterranean mail rooms, where they shoot craps instead of shafts, which is polite language for the male of the cow species.

Newspaper offices or the occupants thereof are inclined to grow crazy on the slightest provocation, but each one of them possesses an annual event, which marks the individual insanity of the particular commonwealth in which their periodical is published. The disease is catching, too.

For instance, no man ever worked in a New Orleans paper without paying undue attention to the activities surrounding Mardi Gras. He becomes an expert on masques, mythology, underworld tradition, and—in the old day—the mysteries of mystic societies and the component parts of gin fizzes and Sazerac cocktails.

Chicago's Affliction.

Now, in Chicago newspaper men used to get more excited about the first ward ball than they would over a national election or Mrs. Potter Palmer's return from the Court of St. James, which has always been considered considerable of a yarn in the Windy City. And all there was to the first ward ball was the joint apolitical party of the R. O. T. C. or an upper classman, and the residents will hear the gospel of a greater industrial Georgia through a greater Georgia Tech preached by these in closest contact with the work of the school.

They have announced their faith in Tech and have sustained that announcement by their own subscriptions. Only 50 per cent of the student body have been canvassed in the campaign being waged at the school, and a total of $51,000 in contributions has been announced. The rest of the students are eager to give and the total is expected to take a big jump during the next week.

Not satisfied with having given their money to the school, the students have asked the Atlanta executive committee, headed by G. F. Willis, to give them another opportunity, and the work they begin this morning is the result. The faculty of the school has also subscribed 100 per cent to the fund, the amount of their subscriptions to be announced within the next few days.

Two thousand students of the North Avenue institution are the main figures in this new phase. They are going out Monday morning under strict military orders to do the work and have agreed that the process be under the strict supervision of Major A. L. Pendleton, commander of Tech's R. O. T. C.

Testimony in rebuttal to that introduced by Eugene R. Black, evidence to show that the detective department was efficient in dealing with crime, and attempts to establish by witnesses that the solicitor-general was derelict in prosecuting members of the pay-off gang, will be the line of defense set up at the bunco hearing today by lawyers for the accused detective heads.

At the Friday hearing Mr. Black announced he would rest his case of the citizens' committee, with the reservation that he be allowed to introduce other witnesses if there were new developments.

Opens Third Week.

The defense is now to have its inning and will offer before the probe its side of the investigation. The probe, which goes into its third week Monday, will be resumed at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Judge J. K. Hines, counsel for Lamar Folsom, chief of detectives, said Sunday that it is the plan of the defense to take up first testimony in rebuttal to that introduced by the prosecution, then evidence to show the efficiency of the detective department.

The Ed Mills murder case will come back into the limelight. Starting the first night of the probe, the prosecution went through a thorough review of the case and examined numerous witnesses in an effort to disclose the detective's derelict in the part they played in pursuing evidence against Floyd Woodward, confessed murderer of Mills.

Officers who had connection with that case will be put on the stand today.

CORONER TO PROBE DEATH OF M'ELROY

Detectives Have Completed Investigation and Will Make Report at Inquest This Morning.

The coroner's inquest over the body of Andrew McElroy, of 216 Fernwell street, well-known Atlanta labor leader who was found dead from a fractured skull late Saturday night in the area-way of the Kimball house, near the railroad side entrance, will be held at 9 o'clock Monday morning at the funeral home of Harry G. Poole, undertaking establishment. Police officials are making an investigation of the case.

According to reports from the police, a great deal of mystery surrounds the death of the man. Examination of the body early Sunday morning showed that the skull was fractured on the left side of the forehead, with a badly swollen right eye, which was inflamed and clotted with coagulated blood. On the left knee cap were three minor scratches. No other bruises were found on the head or body.

Cause of His Death.

The fractured skull, it is said, might either have been caused from a blow delivered by some blunt instrument, or by falling from the street into the pit, a distance of some eight feet.

First news of the mysterious killing was received about 11:30 o'clock Saturday night, when a bell boy leaving the hotel perceived the outstretched figure of a man lying on the elevator shaft at the bottom of the pit, which leads to the baggage store room in the basement of the building. The body was lying face downwards, with the head pointing in the direction of the Union station, and with the hands outstretched to the right and left.

The position of the body is said to conflict with the theory that the

GREET ROSA PONSSELLE
AT GEORGIAN TERRACE

Rest of the Metropolitan Company to Reach Atlanta
on Special Train
Early Today.

BY PAUL WARWICK.

By the time breakfasts have been eaten and morning papers glimpsed this morning, all will be in readiness for the opening of Atlanta's eleventh season of Metropolitan grand opera—which begins tonight with the presentation of Umberto Giordano's "Andrea Chenier."

Beniamino Gigli, who will sing the stellar role in that opera, stepped from the train at Brookwood station yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock, and met a salvo of snapshots and curious gazes with the utmost Italian grace. His rise to the heights of stardom during the past season is gradually growing less surprising. His personality, to be sure, has aided him, and the appearance tonight should dissipate all further wonder at his recent attainments.

Mr. Gigli was not alone, far from it! There alighted from the same train the one and only "Billy" Guard, press agent extraordinary and diplomat par excellence, dividing his time between eliding curt Italian phrases at Gigli and hurrying warm American greetings at the Atlanta friends who met him, newspaper men, et al. Charles Hackett, another of the tenor array Mr. Gatti Casazza has sent us this year, arrived with the pair. Mr. Hackett sniffed the sweet spring air and looked glad that he had brought his golf clubs. Under his arm he carried a bag, captioned "Something Dolce." He made no commentary on the significance of that.

Reached the Terrace.

Loaded into automobiles with baggage—Gigli called it some funny name with two more syllables—the notable trio arrived at the Georgian Terrace and there consummated the meeting which assures Atlanta of a good opening night. Sitting on the terrace was Rosa Ponselle, chatting with Forrest Adair. Miss Ponselle did not expect the Beniamino Gigli, did not expect Miss Ponselle, so they up and had a little welcoming fest with no delay. Miss Ponselle performed with the same linguistic versatility that Billy Guard had employed.

If some ignorant person insists that Beniamino Gigli does not speak English, have away with him, for such is by no means the case. It's not the case, though it is admitted it may be about six quarts true. But when the Italian tenor sang up at the clear sky, kind of blurred a bit with words, he uttered one word, very distinctly. "Beautiful," quoth he, in tenor.

Having said that, he proceeded fluently.

"I do not speak English."

Discusses Weather.

That was all he allowed us of his Websterian display, but he turned to his manager, Ottavio Scotto, and began a lengthy discourse on something, we knew not what, in the attractive liquid tongue that is "divine" in his mouth, but he stopped, half clown before he stopped, gesturing gracefully, and not wildly the while. His manager later informed Billy Guard that Mr. Gigli had been describing the atmosphere which Mr. von Herrmann had allowed to greet him as just like that he remembers in sunny Italy. And when an Italian admits that anything here is as good as the same thing in sunny Italy, the limit of praise has been reached.

There is something about Gigli's gracious response to the banter of newspaper photographers that reminds one of Caruso. Even if he is not as energetic in posing himself as Caruso, he submits with a grace that makes you like the fellow. The fact that he's human is attested by the fact that he was actually embarrassed during part of the snapping orgy.

If it's not too late, it might be well to dwell for a second on Billy Guard's explanation of how you pronounce Mr. Gigli. We'll start at the beginning, with Benjamin. You do it like this: Ben-ya-mee-no, pronounce them all, leaning heavily on the third syllable, and w. Gigli. Remember Jack and Jill? Well, here you are—Jill-ye. Smooth it over as much as possible, don't slight either half of it, and you will have said it so Mr. Gigli, himself, would almost recognize it.

In Good Spirits.
He was apparently bubbling over with good spirits, if distinguished tenors bubble. On the way from the station to the hotel, he gave passerby and attendants a small sample of his voice. Just about three and a half notes from something, "Or maybe not from anything. Just exuded a trio of promising syllables to prove that he was a tenor. There was something about the little "snatch that he did that makes you believe you're going to like him in "Andrea Chenier" and in all the rest. Tonight will tell.

Miss Ponselle is getting to be one of us. Her frequent visits to Atlanta have made her so well known to us and have so endeared her that it seems scarcely fair to our patriotic instincts to admit that she is here with the Metropolitan company. It's nice to say that it's very convenient that Miss Ponselle won't have to leave home to sing with her company during its next week's work.

Others To Arrive.
Sometime between the heavy-lidded hours of 5 and 6 o'clock Monday morning, two sections of a special train will arrive with the rest of the opera company. Many leading lights of the aggregation, with the ballet, the orchestra, the conductors, the motormen, the chorus members and a hundred or so other necessary, very necessary, people will arrive and go about the business of getting everything all set for the opening night.

Meanwhile, Atlanta is doing her part, with the arrangement of box parties, after-opera dances and all the rest of the social activity that accompanies the season. People are pouring into Atlanta from all quarters of this quarter of the globe, hotels are already beginning to feel cramped and all over the south in lobbies are posted the warnings—Atlanta crowded to the gills this week, eleventh annual season of Metropolitan grand opera.

"clean-up" work. At their luncheon Saturday the team leaders decided to finish the canvases of the territories which had been assigned to them during the first days of this week, although their part of the campaign ended officially Saturday.

The initial subscriptions committees, under T. H. Daniel, are still at work and expect the contributions through that source to increase materially the coming week. These committees, headed by forty of Atlanta's leading citizens, are calling upon the larger industrial and commercial concerns. Many of these firms will make large subscriptions, but must await the meeting of their directorates before announcing the amounts.

Moreover, there are several large foreign corporations who have branches here, and they are awaiting the action by the board of directors at home offices before making announcement of their contributions.

FEDERAL AGENTS TO PROBE "MURDER FARM"

"murder farm" is located is without his jurisdiction and that he referred the matter to the bureau of investigation with the understanding the case would be called to the attention of John W. Bennett, district attorney of the southern district of Georgia, should the developments warrant such action.

Refusing to divulge any of the names of witnesses and the name of the county, the district attorney added that the charges had been referred to him by citizens who did not know to whom to take the matter. Since the case had been placed in the hands of the bureau of investigation, he stated that he did not feel at liberty to hinder their operations by divulging the evidence as presented to him, but that he did not feel that the information to the effect that negroes are said to have been killed on the farm would interfere with the agents.

It is not known whether the charges against the south Georgia plantation owner have been referred to any county officials. The witnesses informing the district attorney asserted that a condition of peonage existed on the farm.

"Conditions Are Bad."
Mr. Alexander asserted that conditions in Georgia are very bad and must be remedied. His department is receiving all cases of alleged peonage, and in many instances where the county is not within his jurisdiction or the charges without his authority, he is referring them to the proper officials.

Relative to peonage conditions in this state and county, the Georgia Governor Dorsey stated Sunday that he was prepared to support all of the charges he has compiled in a booklet by revealing the names and affidavits to all parties desiring the information.

The governor's booklet was published almost in full in Sunday's Constitution, and the action he has taken in the matter has caused much favorable comment. He has called for a thorough investigation of peonage in Georgia.

PEACE RESOLUTION READY FOR SENATE

Knox Measure to Be Reported This Week—The Emergency Tariff Bill Delayed Ten Days.

BY JOHN GLEISSNER, United News Staff Correspondent.

Washington, April 24.—The Knox peace resolution, declaring an end of the technical state of war existing with Germany, will come before the senate this week.

The committee on foreign relations, meeting Monday, is ready to report out the resolution favorably without delay. It is expected debate on the senate floor will begin at once. The resolution, as it will be reported out, will differ slightly from the original draft; Senator Knox has made alterations to make more specific the section providing for the retention of Austro-Hungarian property sequestered by the alien property custodian.

Representative Porter, chairman of the house foreign affairs committee, is to introduce another resolution in the lower chamber, but the senate is to be permitted to take the lead. The Porter resolution will be the same as the Knox in principle, but will be slightly different in some of its phraseology.

The emergency tariff bill, which it had been expected would be reported out by the finance committee for consideration this week, probably will be delayed for ten days. Differences have arisen over the exchange valuation and anti-dumping sections of this measure, which will necessitate executive sessions by the committee for the purposes of making revisions. Questions have arisen not only over the practicability of administering these clauses, but also over the wisdom of adopting them at all. They are expected to draw fire when the bill is before the senate, but it is not believed the opposition will be sufficiently formidable to cause defeat.

The immigration restriction bill, passed by the house, will be considered by the senate committee and reported out favorably without delay. The committee on education and labor expects to take favorable action on the Sheppard-Towner maternity bill, and to begin drafting a bill for creation of a department of public welfare, in accordance with the wishes of President Harding. The senate committee on agriculture is working on the bill for regulation of the packers, and this is expected to leave the committee soon.

The army and navy appropriation bills, which failed of passage at the last session, will be discussed in the house this week. The navy bill has left committee, and the army bill is scheduled to follow it in a day or so. It is expected by House Leader Mondell that these bills will occupy most of the time of the lower chamber for the next few days and will be passed by the end of the week.

The disarmament hearings to be conducted by the committee on foreign affairs will begin soon. They were to have started at once, but were delayed because of a conference representative Porter is to have with Secretary of State Hughes. The ways and means committee is continuing its preparation of a permanent tariff bill. The special committee investigating the escape of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, wealthy draft dodger, will continue its work.

Railroads Accused Of Employing Lax Financial Methods

Chicago, April 24.—Financial mismanagement of American railways involving the dissipation of tremendous sums in bonuses to stockholders, unnecessary costs of market securities, interest and dividends on excess capitalization, and other losses was charged in an exhibit filed with the United States railroad labor board by the railway unions and made public today. The exhibit took up the history of twenty roads in an effort to show that they issued fictitious capitalization during the period 1910-1919 totalling $692,000,000. During this time also claimed that they issued bonuses, or stock dividends, amounting to $233,559,000 and through other forms of financial mismanagement sustained losses amounting to $122,000,000. In addition it was claimed that thirteen representative roads during the period referred to dissipated, through improper methods of marketing their securities, the sum of $51,458,875.

"During the period from 1910 to 1919, thirteen railroads gave away in bonuses to stockholders the sum of $27,546,051," according to the report.

"These figures are merely illustrative of the financial practices which have affected the ability of the railroads to pay reasonable rates of compensation to their employees."

Apple Crop Failure.
Lyerly, Ga., April 24.—(Special.) The fruit crop was not damaged to any extent in northwest Georgia by the recent frosts, although the apple crop is said to be a total failure throughout this section. Last year there was one of the biggest crops of apples in many years, but the trees are almost barren this year. There is an abundant crop of peaches, however. Early gardens were the chief sufferers from the frost.

Atlantic City, April 24.—James Dunnivant, an employee in the steward's department of the St. Charles hotel, was arrested here today in connection with the death on April 14 of "Count" Heinrich von Pickler. No specific charge was lodged against the prisoner, the authorities stating merely that he was held for investigation. County Prosecutor Gaskill referred to the arrest as a "very important one" but beyond this statement declined to discuss the case.

Dunnivant, who is 28 years old, had been employed at the St. Charles hotel for about two years until five weeks ago. It was at the same hotel that Von Pickler, said to have been a German nobleman, was employed as a store room clerk. The two men were said by the police to have been close friends. Prior to his death Von Pickler was known here as Henry Buehler. His body with the skull crushed was found along the trolley tracks on the outskirts of the city. Friends later asserted he was a member of the Von Pickler and Von Buehler families, of Wurzburg, Bavaria, and investigation, the police said tonight, proved this to be correct. He had been in America 28 years, 11 of which were spent in this city.

Giordano's "Andre Chenier" Opens Opera Week Tonight

Umberto Giordano's opera, "Andre Chenier," will open the Metropolitan Opera company's season tonight at the Auditorium.

Marie Andre Chenier, upon incidents in whose life this opera is founded, was a distinguished French poet, and was born at Constantinople in 1762. He was the third son of Louis Chenier, French consul general in that city. His mother was a Greek lady of remarkable beauty and accomplishments. While quite a child he was sent to France, and in his thirteenth year he was placed at the College de Navarre, Paris. Partly from predilection, and partly through the influence of his mother, Greek literature was from the beginning his special subject of study. At the age of 20 he entered the army, and served for six months in Strasbourg, as sub-lieutenant; but disgusted with the frivolity of the military life of that day, he returned to Paris and gave himself up to a strenuous course of study. To this period belong two of his most famous works, "Le Mendiant" and "L'aveugle."

His health giving away, he traveled in Switzerland, Italy and the Archipelago. In 1786 he returned to Paris and began several of his most ambitious poems, most of which, however, remained fragments. The most noteworthy are "Suzanne," "L'Invention" and "Hermes," the last being in plan and spirit an imitation of the great poet of Lucrèce; for Chenier shared the beliefs of the eighteenth century philosophers of France. In 1787 he went to England as secretary to the French ambassador, but seems to have found his residence there as unbecomingly as Heloise did. Returning to Paris in 1793, he found himself in the forefront of the revolution. Up to a certain point he gave the movement his ardent support; but alarmed by its excesses, he mortally offended Robespierre by certain denunciatory pamphlets. He was thrown into the prison of Saint Lazare, and after six months was executed on the 25th of July, 1794, just three days before the close of the reign of terror.

Chenier holds in France a some-what similar position to Keats in England. They suggest each other, also by their early deaths and by a certain affinity of genius.

The Story of the Opera.

Act 1.—Ballroom in a chateau. Gerard, a servant, but also a revolutionary, is secretly in love with Maddalena, the countess's daughter. Among the guests at a ball is Andre Chenier, a poet with revolutionary tendencies. Maddalena asks him to improvise a poem of love. Instead, he sings of the wrongs of the poor. Gerard appears with a crowd of ragged men and women, and the countess, Gerard, Chenier and Maddalena, the latter weary of the routine of fashion, have been attracted to each other.

Act 2.—Cafe Rotonde, in Paris, several years later. Chenier has defended the revolutionists who are watching Gerard, Maddalena's old nurse, and sees her hand Chenier loves him. She is dogged by spies, begs him to come to her aid, and passes, followed by a mob. Gerard, now high in favor, seeks to possess Maddalena, who comes to meet the poet. They are about to flee, when Gerard, notified by the spy, interposes. Chenier is seized, and with words, Gerard is wounded. The lovers escape.

Act 3.—Revolutionary Tribunal. The crowd sings the "Carmagnole." Chenier has been captured. Gerard writes the indictment for his rival. Maddalena pleads for her lover, promising to give herself to Gerard if Chenier is saved. Gerard, moved by the girl's love, agrees to save him. At the trial, the indictment declares that the indictment against Chenier is false. But the mob, thirsting for more blood, demands the poet's death.

Act 4.—Prison of Saint Lazare, at midnight. Maddalena enters to Chenier with Gerard. She has bribed the jailer to allow her to substitute for another woman prisoner. If she cannot live for her lover, she can at least die with him. Together she and Chenier go to the scaffold.

YE OLDEN TIME

Hoop skirts were worn by those who first asked for "Golden Medical Discovery" put up by Dr. Pierce over fifty years ago.

Lenoir, N. C.—"Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery" is a great medicine for me in building me up when I feel run-down in health. It gives me strength and flesh. I have been using it at different times for thirty years or more."

—MRS. LUCY BEACH, No. 1.

Druggists sell it in liquid or tablets.

linently male in sex and masculine in gender, and red-headed to boot.

Slender Jasper Happenings.

Marion had been mixed up in all sorts of splendidly sinister things down in Jasper and Newton counties. The hairy-chested stories in which the humble agriculturalist turns up a platoon of suddenly deceased farm hands every time he tries to break new ground, and equally red-blooded yarns about drunken men in that section quitting the springtime sport because they didn't know whether it was a chicken cat or a human carcass on the end of the hook when the cork was pulled down.

Mr. Kendrick looked on me with lack lustre eye. His thoughts were engrossed in some abstract subject. I wondered what could be worrying a man that much since the income tax season closed.

"Tell me something," he said hoarsely. "If you rent a dress suit for opera week, and you entitled to wear it to the matinee? Was it passed that rule that they've got to be worn like pajamas? If I go to the park at night with De-Idiot, watching me through foot-glasses, or in the daytime with lady policemen watching me through smoked glasses, and if I go to the opera suit, I'm going to wear it, whether they are singing the 'Little Brown Jug' from Rigoletto, in the afternoon, or in the evening by the moonlight, at 9 o'clock in the morning."

"The Little Brown Jug," from Rigoletto," I inquired. "I don't see you."

Just a Little Quirt.

"The quirt," quoth Kendrick, "is a quirt is a little quirt, which is exactly what a little brown jug holds," he explained. Kendrick will have his just as much as it may be. I encountered Mr. Victor Knauth, a speaker with a little brown jug, which takes some energy.

"Has the Miami bridegroom had his little brown jug yet, since he spent a night in jail?" I asked Knauth.

"I can't tell you about that k-know," said Knauth. "I know occurred to me before this k-week, but I'm convinced that this case would k-tend itself admirably to operate purposes. Every opera has a k-jail scene and in the libretto, I'm k-writing for this one, the capture takes place in jail, and see, Act 1 opens at the DeKalb prison. Act 2 has for its k-setting the Fulton Tower, and Act 3 takes place at the k-police barracks. Act 4 hasn't k-happened yet, but I'll be hurt other people.

GRAND OPERA JAG DEMORALIZES STAFF

The want ad, the market or the editorial page, which form the three most popular graveyards for respected news items.

Forgetting all about the opera's approach, I conversed with members of the Constitution staff Sunday, seeking the most intimate inside on everything of importance that was breaking. I first encountered Marion Kendrick, who for the benefit of the public in general and friend wife in particular, I will say is dis-tingly male in sex and masculine in gender, and red-headed to boot.

Slender Jasper Happenings.

Marion had been mixed up in all sorts of splendidly sinister things down in Jasper and Newton counties. The hairy-chested stories in which the humble agriculturalist turns up a platoon of suddenly deceased farm hands every time he tries to break new ground, and equally red-blooded yarns about drunken men in that section quitting the springtime sport because they didn't know whether it was a chicken cat or a human carcass on the end of the hook when the cork was pulled down.

Mr. Kendrick looked on me with lack lustre eye. His thoughts were engrossed in some abstract subject. I wondered what could be worrying a man that much since the income tax season closed.

"Tell me something," he said hoarsely. "If you rent a dress suit for opera week, and you entitled to wear it to the matinee? Was it passed that rule that they've got to be worn like pajamas? If I go to the park at night with De-Idiot, watching me through foot-glasses, or in the daytime with lady policemen watching me through smoked glasses, and if I go to the opera suit, I'm going to wear it, whether they are singing the 'Little Brown Jug' from Rigoletto, in the afternoon, or in the evening by the moonlight, at 9 o'clock in the morning."

"The Little Brown Jug," from Rigoletto," I inquired. "I don't see you."

Just a Little Quirt.

"The quirt," quoth Kendrick, "is a quirt is a little quirt, which is exactly what a little brown jug holds," he explained. Kendrick will have his just as much as it may be. I encountered Mr. Victor Knauth, a speaker with a little brown jug, which takes some energy.

"Has the Miami bridegroom had his little brown jug yet, since he spent a night in jail?" I asked Knauth.

"I can't tell you about that k-know," said Knauth. "I know occurred to me before this k-week, but I'm convinced that this case would k-tend itself admirably to operate purposes. Hythe, England, April 24.—No decision was reached concerning Germany's reparations at the conference today between the British and French premiers.

The supreme council has been summoned to meet next Saturday. The British and French premiers, in session here throughout Sunday, that a new offer had been transmitted through the American government. Their attitude will be guided, it is felt, largely by what disposition is made of the latest note by the Harding administration.

The eleventh-hour attempt of Frenchman and Von Simons to bring America into the negotiations, either for the purpose of gaining amelioration of the actual terms, or a delay in application of the threatened penalties for non-payment on May 1, has exercised a disturbing influence on the entire leaders. As a diplomatic move, it has forced them into the position of waiting for President Harding's attitude before rendering a final decision on the question.

Consider Scheme.

They have, accordingly, devoted a greater part of the two days since Premier Briand's arrival on English soil to consideration of the French scheme for occupation of the Ruhr.

district, and to discussing the probabilities in the event Von Simons' latest offer is found unsatisfactory.

The new proposals, it is said here, constitute a flat statement of the maximum sum Germany is capable of paying, according to her own estimates. It will, however, be the door open for alteration, even after it has received consideration at President Harding's hands.

The British military forces, it was practically decided Sunday, will have little or no part in the occupation. Troops to be sent into Germany will be constituted almost entirely of French, possibly with the support of a few Italian units. The general strategic plan has been adopted substantially as outlined by Marshals Foch and Weygand.

The next entire conference will be held at London either upon the arrival of new proposals direct from the German government or upon Germany's defaulting on the payments demanded.

FRANCO-SLOVAKIAN TREATY RUMORED.

Washington, April 24.—France, in continuation of her policy of estab-

ing of a Slav bloc against Germany and Russia from among the smaller nations of Europe, has concluded a secret offensive and defensive alliance with Czechoslovakia, according to advice received here today.

The alliance follows closely upon that concluded by France with Poland. It is reported to be similar to the pact which France is understood to have attempted recently to negotiate with Jugoslavia, Rumania and Hungary.

By the terms of the alliance concluded by France with Czechoslovakia, the two nations are reported to have given pledges to assist each other offensively or defensively in the event of any of the following alternatives:

"Attempted restoration of the monarchical form of government in Germany, Austria or Hungary; any ambitious effort put forward by Austria or Germany in the direction of union of any of the following nations."

DAVISBORO BANDITS ELUDE LAW'S SEARCH

Davisboro, Ga., April 24.—(Special.)—Bandits, who robbed Cashier J. W. Arnold, of a local bank, of about $200 and a batch of checks Saturday night, have not been caught, although the sheriff and a posse of fifty men searched all night for them and at times were close on their trail. The search is being kept up and the officers expect to arrest the guilty parties soon.

Angry Parent: "Did I see you kiss my daughter, sir?"

Young Man: "I really couldn't say, sir. I was too occupied at the time."

ATLANTA'S PLAY WEEK.

Atlanta's annually recurring week of gaiety and relaxation opens tonight with the initial performance of the 1921 season of Metropolitan grand opera, and the indications all point to six days and nights of musical and social entertainment, during which the whole city will devote itself wholeheartedly to the pursuit of pleasure and to the making welcome of the visitors within its gates.

Hotel reservations and opera ticket sales that have been made give evidence of attendance surpassing in volume that of any of the ten preceding seasons of grand opera in Atlanta.

Already hundreds of holders of season tickets and "first night" opera patrons are in Atlanta from neighboring and distant cities, and during the week the number will be increased by thousands.

They are coming solely for what they can get out of it in the way of gratification of their love for classical music, and to participate in the refined enjoyment of a great city at play.

While here, too, they will be

Atlanta's guests—every one of them. They are "company" come to partake of Atlanta's traditional and far-famed hospitality; and it is Atlanta's privilege to entertain them in the way that is peculiarly its own.

As for Atlantans themselves, this is their annual season of holiday and recreation—the spring "breathing spell" that, after a decade of recurring visits by the greatest musical organization in the world, has become an Atlanta institution.

It is a week to be given over mainly to enjoyment of the finer things that go to make life worth while—greeting and fratern-izing with friends; the forming of new friendships; mingling with the best people of the country, in social intercourse, and reveling in the pleasure of cultural entertainment, stage art and musical talent.

Indeed, it is a rare privilege for

Atlanta to be hostess to the whole south upon this occasion, and to make her visitors feel "at home," that they are guests only in a technical sense, and more than welcome!

SKY-FALL FOR EDITOR.

An editorial paragraph in The Cordele (Ga.) Dispatch goes to show that it is an ill meteorite that brings nobody good—

"We have specimens of the meteorite which visited our part of the world yesterday morning, which appeared to most observers to be portions of a great shell fired at us from another planet. Some of the iron element appears to be the finest of manganese. Other rougher portions contain crystal elements, and one jewel, a beautiful emerald, is imbedded in the iron setting."

So, out of the far depths of space,

Cordele gets a rich and glowing advertisement and the editor of its live newspaper, a celestial jewel for ring or stickpin!

Of course, the meteorite's gift will be on exhibition, and the more the people look the greater will the wonder grow!

But, to a town and county, the work of a hustling daily paper, like The Cordele Dispatch, is of inestimable value, in that it is continually bringing the solid wealth of its section to the front; and that is its editor's best reward.

Nevertheless, an emerald shower always comes in handy!

HOW TIGERS GET RICH.

Here is a significant fragment of testimony brought out at the detective department investigation

last Friday night:

"Mr. Black: 'You made a lot of money there?'

"Witness: 'Right smart.'

"Mr. Black: 'How much?'

"Witness: 'Well, sir, if I had all the money I'd paid the police for protection, with what I've got, I could come mighty near to buying the postoffice.'"

The witness was a negro boot-legger, who was formerly a laborer in a coal mine in Tennessee, but who testified that since the "bone dry" prohibition law went into effect he has been engaged in the liquor business at a notorious stand "about a block and a half"

from the police station, lives in luxury and keeps two high-priced automobiles for his "personal use" as pleasure cars.

He has frequently been arrested and fined.

Others, too—negroes and white men—have testified to having been arrested repeatedly for illicitly selling whiskey, but found the business lucrative.

The negro whose testimony featured the Friday night session of the councilmanic investigating committee, swore that he had been paying $200 a week to a member of the detective department, in return for which he was notified in advance of a "raid" in order that he might prepare for it; and yet despite that weekly outlay, he was enabled to amass a comfortable fortune.

This bunco-detective department investigation is at least bringing out some facts that are illuminating to decent citizens who are wondering why prohibition does not prohibit, and that ought to be inspirational to judges who make a practice of assessing fines against bootleggers and blind tigers instead of sending them to the chingango.

BOOK A GOLD MINE.

The financial rewards of literature are not listed with dependable things, for they are almost as uncertain as weather predictions.

Authors hope, and publishers advertise and prophesy—but warily,

as to the latter. For "there's no telling!"

But there are exceptions; for once a book gets going, it frequently becomes a steadily producing gold mine to all concerned.

This is shown in the following literary note from The Cleveland

Plain Dealer—

"The fame and emoluments that came to General Ben-Hur in his lifetime from the writing of 'Ben-

Hur' are as nothing to the flood of gold that has poured into his estate from the same source since his death. Besides the income from the book itself, the dramatization of the play in the last twenty-two years have been close to $10,000,000.

Now the motion picture and other rights have been disposed of by the estate for $1,000,000, a new record

price for a transaction of this kind.

General Wallace, however, has better than he could possibly have known at the time he was constructing the thrilling plot and episodes of 'Ben-

Hur.'"

That is indeed a wonderful money-making record for good literature—enough to make authors, old and new, "sit up," wide-eyed!

Probably the selling record of

'David Harum' can match it, that novel having long passed the million-dollar mark.

And it is a book that went begging for a publisher!

The book publishers admit that they don't know it all—they, like the authors, sometimes build better than they know.

The Evening Mail says that while New York "is not exactly dry, it is not so wet that you have to go around in hip boots any more."

That Illinois bank cashier who killed one robber, "winged" two, and captured two, furnishes a pretty good illustration of being

"there with the goods."

thing else to blame for its troubles.

TO SEE REAL TEST OF G. O. P. REGIME

Initial Effects of New Legislation Will Be Felt Within Month — Campaign Promises Involved.

By ROBERT J. BENDER
United News Staff Correspondent.

Washington, April 24.—Within the next thirty days the first positive tests will be applied to the new administration foreign and domestic policies.

During that period the declaratory peace with Germany will have been established and its first effects noted; the emergency tariff measure will have become law and it will be seen whether it attains its objective of affording temporary relief in the crisis faced by farmers and other industries; sweeping departmental reorganization, recommended by Secretary Hoover, Charles Dawes and others as not only necessary for the sake of economy but absolutely vital to the success of the administration itself, will have begun; the basis upon which the German reparations problem is to be solved as well as the method of procedure toward working out other debatable questions, raised by this government in allied disposition of certain settlements under the Versailles treaty, will have been reached; and measures for rehabilitating the railroads probably will have been at least begun.

In view of this, the new administration today is seen passing from the stage wherein it has laid the foundations for carrying out its pre-election promises and is about to pass into a position where it may experience the first domestic and international results of enactment of these promises.

The steps mentioned are those regarded by the administration as the most vital toward stabilizing

Drastic Changes In Foreign-Born Totals Revealed

War Caused Losses Among Germans, Austrians, Irish and Russians.

Washington, April 24.—(By the Associated Press.)—Germany, Austria, Ireland and Russia, natives of which made up more than 59 per cent of the country's total foreign-born population ten years ago, showed heavy losses in the number of their natives in the United States during the last ten years, census bureau statistics show these losses aggregating almost 2,000,000 and are believed to have been due largely to the world war, with its consequent exodus of belligerent nationals, and the stoppage of immigration.

German-born showed a loss of 1,810,000; Austrian-born, a loss of 600,014; Irish-born, a loss of 216,571; and Russia-born a loss of 202,733. While Germany had the largest loss numerically, Austria's loss was relatively the largest, having been more than 50 per cent.

Notwithstanding these heavy losses, the country's total foreign-born population, as just announced by the bureau of census in a preliminary statement prepared for the early use of congress, showed an increase of 338,442, or 2.6 per cent, over the 12,703,987, the increase being 13,703,987. The increase is believed to have been the smallest both in number and percentage ever recorded for any decade. In the previous decade, 1900-10, the increase was 3,174,610 or 20.7 per cent.

Germans Lead Birth.
Germany led as the country of birth of the foreign-born in the United States ten years ago with a total of more than 2,000,000 and still leads, although the number was reduced to 1,623,193, decrease of 376,807. The number of natives of Germany have continued to show a loss each decade since 1890, but the last decade's decrease was the largest shown.

The standing of other countries in the foreign-born population of the United States has changed somewhat from ten years ago. Italy has taken second place from Russia with an increase of 364,223 in the ten years, compared with an increase of 559,000 in the previous decade, and a total for 1920 of 1,607,458.

Russia has taken third place from Ireland, but showed a decrease of 202,732 compared with an increase of about 1,000,000 in the decade 1900-10. Natives of Russia in the United States number 1,398,929.

Poland in Fourth Place.
Poland has gone into fourth place, while France occupies fifth, with an increase of 195,771 in the ten years, bringing her total to 1,129,578.

Ireland, which has shown decreases in each decade since 1890, had a larger decrease during the last decade than in any previous one, the loss having been 216,571, compared with a decrease of 263,208 for 1900-10. The total number of Irish-born in the United States in 1920 was 1,035,680, ranking that country fourth.

Canada showed a decrease of 57,501 in the ten years compared with an increase of 27,000 the previous decade, and dropped from fifth to sixth place. Total Canadians numbered 1,117,136. French-Canadians numbered 899,455 and showed a loss of 10,993.

English Decrease.
Persons born in England numbered 812,414, which was a decrease of 63,305 in the ten years, compared with an increase of 27,000 the previous ten years. English ranked seventh, which place she held ten years ago.

Sweden continued to hold eighth place with a total of 824,759. That was a decrease of 40,448 in the ten years, compared with an increase of 83,000 the previous decade.

Austria, with the second largest numerical loss of any country during the ten years, dropped into ninth place from the previous position. The decrease in the number of her natives in the United States was 600,014, compared with an increase of 682,000 during the previous decade. Austria's total natives in the United States numbered 574,959.

The number of Mexican-born increased more than 100 per cent during the ten years, the number having been 234,701 in 1910, and rising to 476,676. There was an increase of 118,000 in the previous decade.

Hungary, with a total of 337,081, showed a decrease of 98,528 compared with an increase of 24,000 from 1900 to 1910.

Norway Decreases.
Norway showed a decrease of 40,273 compared with an increase of 67,000 in the previous ten years, bringing her total down to 353,389.

Scotland, with a total of 254,483, showed a decrease of 6,294 compared with an increase of 27,000 in 1910.

Denmark had an increase of 7,102 compared with an increase of 28,000 in 1910, bringing her total to 189,051.

Greece showed a large percentage of increase, but it was not so large numerically as in 1910. Her increase was 74,419, bringing her total to 175,701.

France's increase was larger than during the previous ten years. It was 35,374 compared with 13,000 in 1910, bringing her total to 152,031.

Finland increased 19,391 to 149,671. Netherlands increased 11,129 to 131,262. Switzerland decreased 2,081 to 224,848. Rumania increased 37,078 to 103,067. Asia increased 20,808 to 104,484.

Spain, Belgium, Belgium, New Foundland and Australia showed increases while Wales and Bulgaria showed decreases.

MOONSHINE LIQUOR BLAMED IN DEATHS OF MAN AND MAID

Chicago, April 24.—The bodies of W. D. Bodman, an official of the Columbia National Life Insurance company, and that of an unidentified maid, were found by police here late Sunday in the man's bungalow.

Bodman's body lay partly on a bed and that of the maid on the floor. Empty bottles and one containing wine, were about the room, and police believe that both died from moonshine liquor.

Evidence tended to show, the police said that Bodman had been taken ill and that the maid, who had worked in the home for a few days, had attempted to aid him.

Dorothea's Romance Chapter XV. The Surprise

Dorothea leaves tomorrow. So we planned a little dinner for tonight—just Dorothea and Jimmy. Jim's sister Barbara and her husband and Alan and myself.

Dorothea was out with Jimmy this afternoon—"for our last one date." She had explained laughingly. They were late getting home and Barbara and her husband arrived before them. As we sat there talking, Dorothea and Jimmy came in, looking very happy but obviously trying to appear perfectly at ease.

Finally Dorothea said casually, "We've been shopping this afternoon and I've got something to show you." She drew off her glove and on her finger was one of the loveliest rings I have ever seen. A diamond caught by the slenderest of platinum prongs nestled in a band of platinum filigree, studded with tiny diamonds. "Jimmy is going home with me," she continued happily, "to meet my family."

What a happy party we did have! Jimmy is simply a wonder and Dorothea the sweetest girl I've ever met! And the loveliest! She was truly a picture tonight—her soft hair arranged so simply, her eyes sparkling with happiness and her beautiful complexion. Dorothea's complexion is one of her greatest charms. She uses Magnolia Balm—a marvelous liquid powder and lotion combined which keeps the skin clear and soft and velvety. Her skin is always perfect—never a freckle nor a bit of roughness to mar its beauty. And Magnolia Balm is so easy and refreshing to use. It comes in pink, white, and rose-red—at 75c a bottle. At most all drug stores, or direct from the L'Oréal Mfg. Co. (45 E. 57th St., Brooklyn, N. Y.).

Jimmy summed it all up in one sentence when he said proudly, "I've got the most wonderful, most beautiful girl in the world." And we all agreed with him!

The End.

Vast Counterfeit Cache Is Seized In Lemberg Plant

Five Million Dollars in Spurious American Coin Is Confiscated.

Warsaw, April 23.—Counterfeit American paper money representing approximately $5,000,000 has been confiscated in Lemberg by the police authorities, who discovered a counterfeiting plant in full operation. A man named Simon Lisner, and his wife and Lisner's sister-in-law, and their husband have been arrested in connection with the case. Lisner came to Poland recently from Russia. The police allege that he learned counterfeiting in Russia, but that the business did not pay there.

The bill seized consisted of denominations of $100, $50 and smaller sums. The American consular authorities who have seen the bills declare they are clever imitations of real American money. They even contain silk threads, but these are a little light in color.

Women make skillful and rapid barbers, says a paper. They should—some women can talk all the hair off a man's head in no time.

Aged Millionaire, Recently Wedded, Dangerously Ill

Washington, April 24.—George M. Oyster, 72-year-old millionaire bridegroom, whose marriage recently to 61-year-old Cecile Ready, of Syracuse, afforded Washington something of a social stir, is reported to be dangerously ill at the Waldman Park hotel here.

Dr. W. S. Bowen, local physician, who attended Oyster at Atlantic City, declared upon his return Sunday that his millionaire patient is "that he cannot be brought to Washington." "He is a very sick man," said Dr. Bowen, "but we are hopeful of his recovery."

Casuals Returning.

Antwerp, April 24.—Four hundred enlisted men from Coblenz returning home as casuals or for discharge re-enlistment or other disposition, left here today on the transport Somme. They are commanded by Major Francis T. Armstrong.

Announce

A 7½c LOAF OF BREAD

To Be Known As

"CLOVER LEAF"

This new bread—Clover Leaf at 7½c—is in answer to a certain demand for a less-than-10c loaf. With this addition to our present breads the housewife is offered a variety from which to select that will cover every need and answer every requirement. The Clover Leaf loaf, while not quite as rich as Merita or Butter Nut, is made from the same high grade materials. This 7½c loaf will be made just as rich and nourishing as is possible at this price.

A ONE CENT PER LOAF REDUCTION ON Merita

Merita, from its inception, has been an unusually large loaf. In recent months we have announced two increases in weight, which has gotten this loaf up to a size where it is now large enough for the average family, and which makes a further increase in weight rather undesirable. Therefore, we have decided to let the weight stand as at present, but reduce the price one cent per loaf. The goodness of Merita remains the same—rich in flavor, high in nourishment, rare in texture and superb in taste.

Another Increase of 10% In The Weight of BUTTER NUT

In Butter Nut Bread we have set a high standard of quality which makes a reduction in price impractical, so we are taking care of this by increasing the weight another 10%. This is the third increase in weight, making a total of 30% increase in weight in recent months, and which is equivalent to a reduction of approximately 3½c per pound.

MERITA sets the pace in quality breads, BUTTER NUT comes next, then CLOVER LEAF. They are all A. B. C. standard products and your grocer will deliver any of them—fresh from the ovens.

Liquor and Auto Seized by Police in Chase Sunday

Seventeen gallons of good bottled whiskey, in addition to a cut-down Ford automobile, rewarded the efforts of the city police Sunday night, in their attempt to preserve order in the community of West View cemetery.

According to Police Officer Dally, he was on duty on Gordon street, in the vicinity of West View cemetery, when he saw the Ford coupe drive at a high rate of speed. He further observed that the muffler on the car was open, and that it was emitting a loud noise. He signaled for the occupants of the car to stop, intending to call them to the city ordinance against having mufflers on automobiles open. Instead of stopping, however, the driver increased his speed and shot past the officer, who immediately started pursuit on his motorcycle. For several blocks the chase continued and then the car suddenly stopped and the occupants jumped out and escaped.

INITIATION STAGED BY OWLS' SOCIAL CLUB

Before a crowded house composed largely of Agnes Scott girls and Emory boys, the Owls' Social Club, of Emory, carried out a part of its public initiation before the performance of the play "The Club at Agnes Scott College Saturday night."

Why my lips are so kissable" was the subject of the talk given by L. W. Blitch, one of the five initiates of the club.

Those who went through with this part of the public initiation into the club were George W. Eastman, J. C. Harward, of Unidilla, and J. L. Pittman, of Fitzgerald. After the talks of similar nature followed, until someone from behind the scenes pulled the newly fledged owls back and the club performance began.

NEGRESS IS INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

Sallie Bolton, a negress, of 214 East Baker street, was run over by an automobile on Sunday night, at the corner of East Lake and Gordon streets, at 8 o'clock, Sunday night, suffering severe injuries.

Mr. Todger reported the accident to the police station. According to witnesses, the accident was unavoidable one, and Mr. Todger was not held, but delivered a copy of the summons to appear at a hearing at a later date. Witnesses stated that the automobile was driving along the sidewalk and the negress stepped in front of it, apparently not being aware of its approach.

The negress was carried by Mr. Todger to the Grady hospital, where it was found that she had a broken thigh, collarbone and ribs.

ATLANTA BOY SCOUTS HELP IN SAVING COW

Pulling a cow out of the middle of a swamp where she had become mired and was in danger of starvation was a good deed performed by the members of East Lake Troop number one, who were on a recent hike. The cow was found in a swampy place, and the boy scouts carried her to a nearby house, where she was kept until she was able to walk away from the swamp.

On Friday night, April 15, a major meeting of the parents of the boy scouts was held at the Emory University, where the parents of the scouts were present. The meeting was held to discuss the activities of the scouts and to elect officers for the coming year.

Mr. Geldert reported that a lot had been donated to the scouts by the Atlanta Suburban Land Corporation and that a scaling wall had been erected for a permanent home. The scouts were also given a new uniform and a new flag.

ALUMNI OF VIRGINIA TO CONVEY MAY 6

The alumni of the University of Virginia will hold a banquet at the Piedmont Hotel on May 6, at 7:30 o'clock on the night of May 6, at which time plans for the coming year will be discussed. The alumni are asked to send their names and addresses to Palmer Blackburn at the Securities Sales company.

IRISH DISORDERS TAKE DEATH TOLL

Three Dead, Four Wounded, in Sunday Affrays. Heavy Fighting in County Galway.

Dublin, April 24.—Three persons were killed and four others wounded in a series of battles between groups of republicans and the police and military in different parts of Ireland on Sunday.

Detachments of rebels simultaneously besieged the police barracks, military barracks and the coast guard station at Kilrush, County Clare. The barracks and station were stubbornly defended and a fierce battle followed, in which one policeman was killed and two soldiers wounded.

A flying column of rebels, strongly entrenched in the mountainous district about Kilmink, County Galway, was attacked by a police patrol. The rebels returned the fire and the battle lasted four hours. The police were reinforced by soldiers and the republicans retreated carrying their casualties with them. One policeman was killed and two were wounded.

Two auxiliaries were attacked in Belfast. One of them was killed and the other badly wounded.

Brothers are killed. Belfast, April 24.—Two brothers, Patrick and Daniel Duffin, respectively teacher and clerk, were shot and killed at midnight Saturday.

It is believed they were shot in retaliation for an attack in the afternoon on two auxiliaries, when Cadet Bolin was killed and Cadet Biles wounded. Two civilians, Mrs. Louise Gilson and Thomas Kennedy, also received wounds in the early affray.

A long-haired, yellow dog, found in the kitchen of the cottage where the two young Irishmen were killed, is regarded as a clue to the identity of the men who shot them. According to John Duffin, a brother of the dead men, the dog was taken away from the cottage by a district inspector of the royal Irish constabulary, who was at the place at 6 o'clock this morning with a party of police to investigate the tragedy.

Cadet Bolin and Cadet Biles were attacked in a crowded thoroughfare. They came here from Sligo several days ago and intended to return Saturday night. They had found they were unable to do so, however, because the train could not run on account of the shortage of coal due to the miners' strike.

Fighting in Galway. Dublin, April 24.—(By the Associated Press.)—Fighting, which lasted for twelve hours, is reported from the neighborhood of Maam Cross, County Galway. Fourteen policemen, under command of a district inspector, went at 4 o'clock this morning in search of a republican flying column. The republicans were found entrenched on high ground in the vicinity of the home of Patrick O'Malley, member of parliament.

The police took to cover as best they could and a prolonged engagement ensued in which Constable Boylan was killed and a sergeant wounded. At 2:30 o'clock this afternoon reinforcements for the police arrived, bringing with them machine guns. They enveloped the position of the rebels, who fled to the hills, taking their wounded with them.

Visit Private One. The Courier says it has been authorized by the Earl of Derby to deny that he went to Ireland last week on a government mission or on the invitation of anybody in Ireland. The visit was purely a private one and made on the Earl of Derby's own initiative.

Leaders of miners to answer latest proposals today. London, April 24.—The leaders of the striking coal miners are prepared to give the answer of the men to the latest proposals of the board of trade convene again Monday in an effort to settle the trouble.

Sunday afternoon's meetings of the miners' leaders were presented with details of the new proposals from the owners, by Lloyd-George's suggestion. The miners' representatives of the Greater Federation of Miners, said the men would withhold any formal statement of their decisions on the new advances until Monday. A. G. Cook, a member of the executive committee, said, however, that there still seemed to be very little prospect of the men receding from their demand for a national agreement.

Presbytery Meet. Lyerly, Ga., April 24.—(Special.)—The Lyerly Presbytery Sunday School institute, embracing all the Presbyterians in the county, will be held at the Lyerly Presbyterian church next Tuesday, April 26, and a feature program will be rendered.

THE GUMPS—WHEN GOOD FELLOWS GET TOGETHER

Ligi's Sweetheart Sought in Probe Of Bomb Disaster

New York, April 24.—Investigation of the Wall street bomb explosion last September continued today their search for associates of Ligi Ligi, identified yesterday in Scranton, Pa., by Thomas J. Smith, of Brooklyn, as the man he had seen arguing with the driver of the death wagon a few minutes before the explosion.

Department of justice agents and the Scranton police concentrated their efforts to locate a woman who is believed to have been Ligi's sweetheart. They visited towns and settlements near Scranton in an endeavor to pick up a trace of the woman.

The New York police continued their investigation of the suicide yesterday of Adolf La Sar in Brooklyn. La Sar left notes purporting to assume partial responsibility for the explosion. Their main purpose in this action was to ascertain if the dead man was a member of any anarchistic bodies. It has been suggested, one police official said, that La Sar may have been a member of the Malatesta-Galliani band, a Patterson, N. J., organization.

No immediate extradition proceedings seeking to bring Ligi under the jurisdiction of New York would be instituted at present, the police said. This action will be postponed until a luncheon will here for a year or two past, high price of material and scarcity of labor interfering. With the change in conditions, however, everybody in need of a home wants to build one.

NEGRO SLAYER OF MACON YOUTH AVOIDS POSSES

Macon, Ga., April 24.—(Special.)—The negro who shot and killed Lee Hardy, 14-year-old white boy, yesterday near Central City park, is still at large. Sheriff's deputies trailed him as far as Mogul, but lost trace of him. The search continued all day today without the arrest even of a suspicious person.

No motive for the killing developed at the coroner's inquest today, the fact disclosed indicating that it was the work of an insane man or a degenerate. Young Hardy, with two other boys, Willie Blackwell and Hillard Sasser, were on their way to a "wash hole" when they met two negro girls. They were talking to them when the negro man came from his hiding place and opened fire with a pistol, killing Hardy instantly.

Early reports that the boy was shot from a tree were denied today. The two negro girls are still being held in jail. They deny knowing the identity of the negro who did the killing.

BOOM IN BUILDING SEEN AT THOMASVILLE
Thomasville, Ga., April 24.—(Special.)—From the number of men and women who are pouring over the plan for building, Thomasville is fair to get on a building boom this summer and fall. There has been comparatively little building done here for a year or two past, high price of material and scarcity of labor interfering. With the change in conditions, however, everybody in need of a home wants to build one.

A large number of building lots have been sold by the real estate agents lately and the owners are preparing to improve them by putting homes upon them.

Convicted I.W.W.'s Bidden Farewell By Their Leaders

Chicago, April 24.—More in sorrow than in anger and bitterness, fifteen I. W. W. leaders bade farewell to their followers in a "good-bye party" Sunday night.

The leaders, with thirty others in various parts of the country, were to start with the rising sun for Leavenworth prison to serve sentences of from one to twenty years for violation of the espionage law.

Among those not present was William B. ("Big Bill") Hayward, who is, according to dispatches from Moscow, aiding Lenin and Trotsky.

More than a dozen leaders of the "Wobblie" cult spoke. None but Vincent St. John New York, was given anything approaching an enthusiastic applause.

"I would rather be in a penitentiary with good I. W. W. than in Chicago or New York with poor wage slaves," he said.

"In the penitentiary we will have no wage system to fight, no high cost of living to contend with, no capitalists to oppose. We will be fellow workers together."

MUNICIPAL LIGHT PLANT AGITATION IS BEING RENEWED

Americus, Ga., April 24.—(Special.)—Renewal of the fight for a municipally owned electric plant in Americus seems ahead as the result of certain statements made before the Americus Kiwanis club, by W. A. Dodson, attorney for the Americus Lighting company, in which he asserted his company lost approximately $19,000 during 1920, and the spirited reply of Henry B. Mashburn, chairman of the water and sewerage committee of council, in which Dodson's statements are characterized as "misleading information," and containing "glaring inconsistencies." Mashburn's statement replying to Dodson's address in an effort to have the city purchase both the gas and electric plants, if money necessary to put the deal over can be obtained, either through a bond issue or otherwise, which appears doubtful in view of Americus' existing indebtedness.
